Errors can be made on the home page when users enter numbers: for chickens and for people (for saving water) - at the moment it's dealt with but no feedback is provided to the user. Usability testing to be done to see if feedback is needed for this.
There will also be possible errors when entering an email address.

Warnings: if users don't have Javascript enabled, then a warning is displayed. If they select a language but the page is not fully translated then a warning is displayed to say so.

Warning: if javascript is disabled - will appear on any screen, just under the navigation bar. The colour is the same for all 3 colour themes

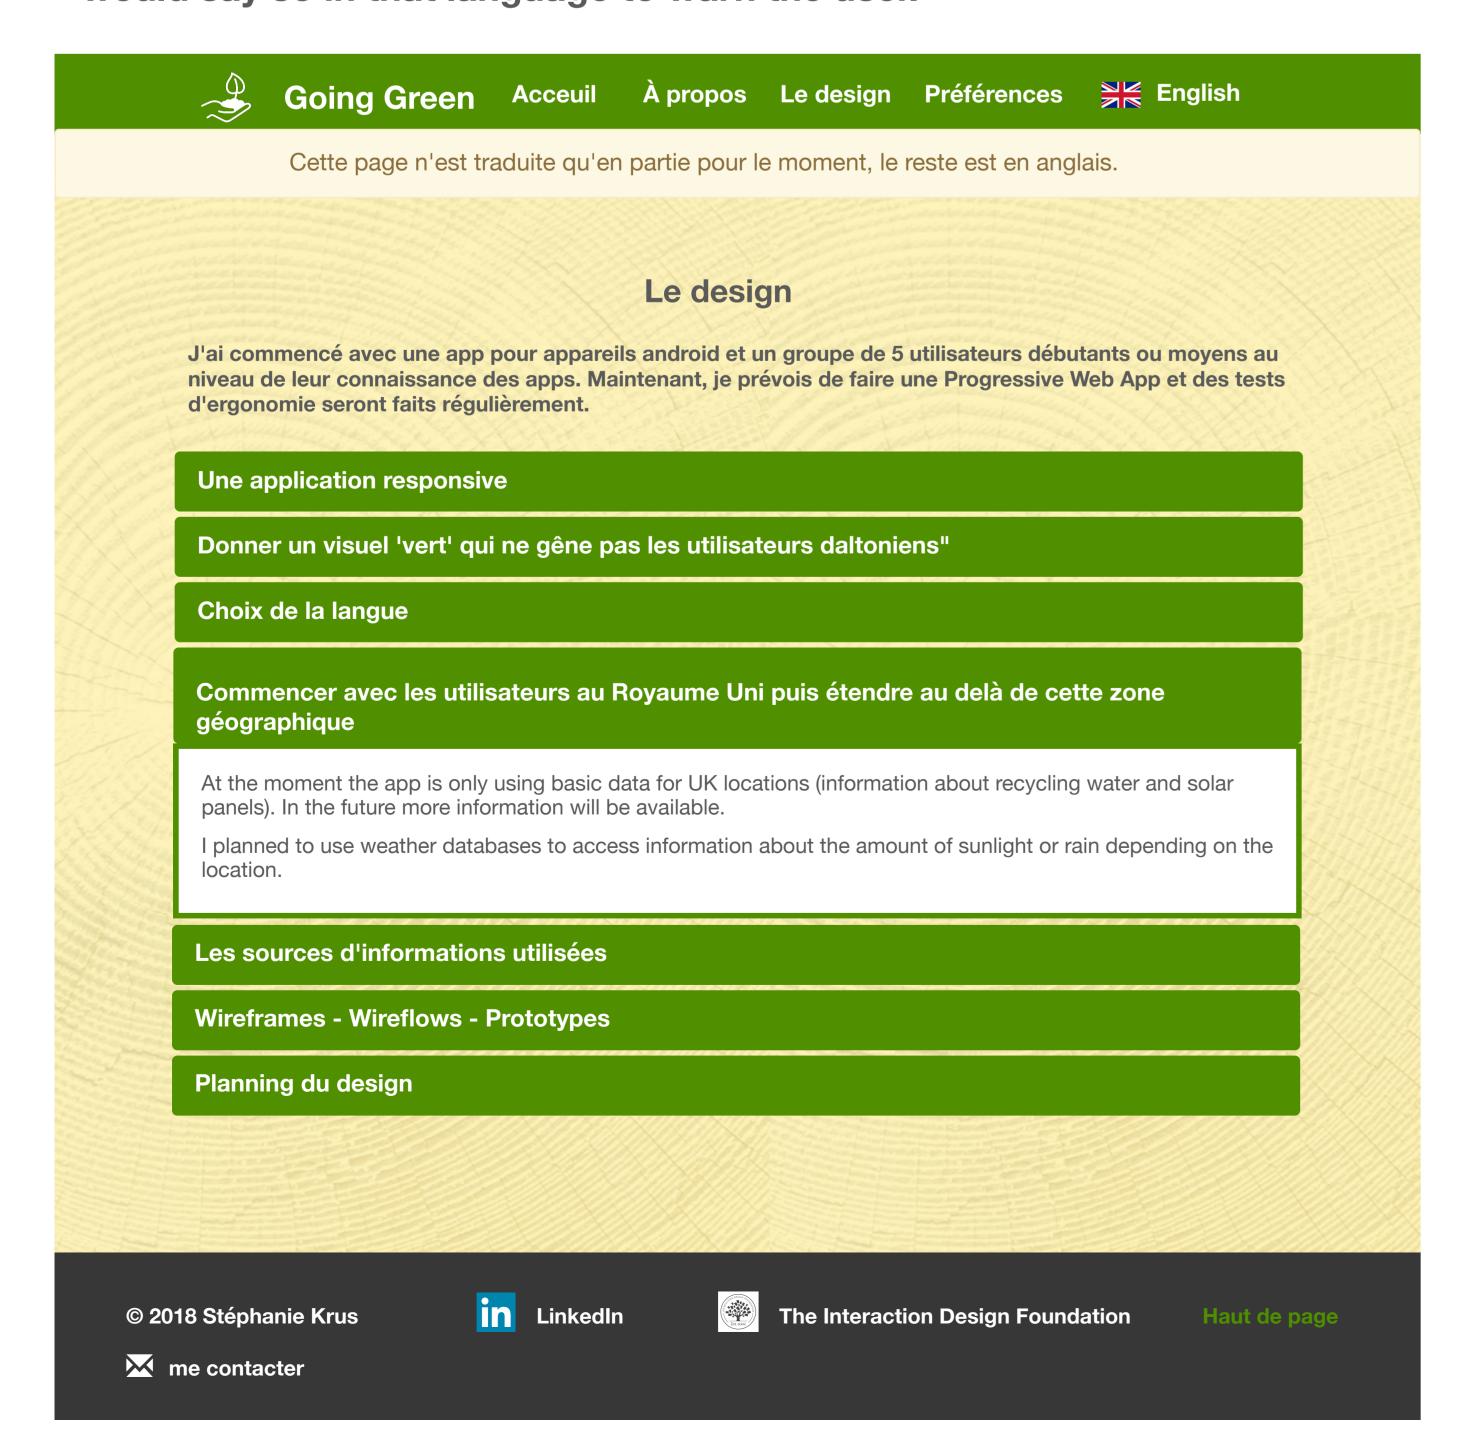

Warnings:

- if the page is not fully translated (it's the case of the Design page) - a warning is provided in the relevant language (so in French here).

- if a page wasn't available at all in a specific language, then the warning would say so in that language to warn the user.

Errors: On the home page 'email the results' section

- if a user doesn't enter an email address at all, then an error message is displayed

- if a user enter an invalid email address, then they are told so.
